The work of ILPP in Dane County opened our eyes to the systemic problems of our criminal justice system but, more importantly, provided a framework for understanding how we can address these problems through collaborative means. ILPP's thorough, rigorous analysis will help us improve the policies, procedures and technology of our justice system, but it doesn't stop there. We've been given a roadmap to re-engineering the very culture of our justice system-- and moving toward that goal is what will pay off in the long run in terms of increased service, greater efficiency and substantial cost savings.
